

Is it possible to set up inverse application sharing?

- Parallels Remote Application Server

Symptoms

Published application has a dependency on another software (for example: Outlook for sending emails generated from within the application), and utilizes said software from the Terminal Server.

Is it possible to use local client software, instead of one installed on a Terminal Server?

Resolution

Described scenario is not supported within current feature set of Remote Application Server. Any software that is required for functionality of a published application will always run from a Terminal Server.
